Phila. May 22nd. 1843.

My dear friend.

The time for our anniversary is drawing near & I am looking forward with pleasure as among its events that of seeing you again. We must have a long talk about that Journal — of which I hear but and nothing since yours except from D. Jackson & others through Mr. Nicollet. That we may talk this & other matters over to the best advantage I beg that you will take up your quarters with me while you are in the city, coming as early as you can & staying as long. Is your paper ready?

Mrs. Bache unites with me in kindest regard to you & yours.

Very truly Yours A. D. Bache.

Dr. Torrey.
